Hello, it's Laurent Rucier.
You know that Florian Gazan's friend has his own podcast.
Ah yes! Thanks to this podcast, you'll soon have incredible anecdotes to share.
Hello, it's Florian Gazan.
In a minute, you'll know why the Chirac couple could be a favela of La Fontaine, the helicopter and the turtle.
Ah yes?
The turtle is the one that Jacques gave to Bernadette for his mentor,
and his size too.
It was 40 cm smaller than him.
And the helicopter is the turtle he had at Sciences Po when they met in 1951, because he was noisy, he moved in all directions and attracted all eyes, including Bernadette's one, but it was the one who approached him.
By a competition of circumstances, like Bernadette was very shy, a friend advised him when the conference master started giving the topics to be exposed, to raise his finger from the first and to take it, a story like that to be revealed.
She did it, and Jacques Chirac,

he took it for the ass.
He boarded the library after the class to offer him to create a group of work.
She ended up accepting and discovering that we also nick the helicopter because he embraces a lot of them.
He doesn't care about one, and it's her who hits all the exposure.
He asks Bernadette to lend him his copy to Dixit, to inspire him a little.
You speak, he pumps it totally.
And he also has a better note which is the beginning of a story that will be concluded by a marriage in 1956 and will survive to everything.
Including the numerous infidelity of Jacques.
Bernadette, in love, closed her eyes but she knew, and Jacques knew that she knew, the proof when we asked him one day what he was looking at first at a woman, he answered that he was looking at a woman, that he was looking at me.
